

Ontario Field Ornithologists

Alan Wormington Memorial Camp

for Young Ornithologists aged 13-18

An Immersive Birding and Science Experience in Algonquin Park
July 8 – July 15, 2017

About the camp

The camp will provide a unique learning opportunity for the upcoming generation of ornithologists, naturalists and environmental scientists.

The camp is an immersive, week-long birding and nature experience where campers will:

- Meet other young birders and naturalists with similar interests
- Develop advanced field identification skills
- Learn field research techniques
- Hone observation and analytical abilities
- Develop an understanding of ecology and conservation biology
- Participate in active research projects

Who should go

The camp is for young people, aged 13 to 18 with a strong interest in nature, and particularly birds. Previous birding experience is helpful, but not required.

The Leaders

The camp will be led by an experienced birder and experts from around the province who will teach special topics.

Location: The camp will be located in the heart of Algonquin Park at the Algonquin Wildlife Research Centre.

Dates: Saturday, July 8 to Saturday, July 15th

Number of Campers: The minimum number of participants is 10, maximum is 16.

Cost: Cost is $1,000 for the week which includes accommodations, meals, activities and transportation. It does not include transportation to and from the park.

How to Register: To register or find out more email: Lynne Freeman at lynnef.to@gmail.com